General Manager's Message and Commitment

“At Yada Global, we believe that one of the key elements of sustainable success is an inclusive working culture that brings together diverse perspectives, experiences, and talents. We consider the principles of diversity, equity, and inclusion not only as part of our corporate values but also as fundamental elements that support the development of our employees, encourage innovation, and strengthen the quality of our services.

Through this Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DEI) Policy, we commit to adopting a fair, transparent, and inclusive approach across all organizational processes, including recruitment, career development, training, performance evaluation, compensation, and the working environment. We explicitly declare that we have zero tolerance for any form of discrimination based on race, ethnicity, nationality, gender, age, disability, religion or belief, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or any other personal characteristic.

At Yada Global, we consider creating a safe and inclusive working environment where all our employees, managers, consultants, and business partners feel valued, respected, and provided with equal opportunities as a fundamental corporate responsibility. We will continue to continuously improve our culture of diversity, equity, and inclusion, ensure compliance with national legislation and international good practices, and implement the commitments set out in this Policy with determination.”

1. Strategic Vision: Diversity as the Foundation of Sustainability and Innovation

Yada Global is a leading organization operating globally in the fields of sustainable development, smart cities, geographic information systems (GIS), environmental and climate policies, digital transformation, European Union projects, as well as national and international consultancy services. We believe that bringing together diverse experiences and areas of expertise is the key to corporate innovation and operational agility.

Yada Global adopts contributing to sustainable development goals and operating in alignment with national legislation and international best practices as core elements of its corporate approach. In line with this commitment, the organization prioritizes preventing discrimination, promoting equal opportunity, and fostering an inclusive working environment.

- International Principles and Guidelines: In drafting this policy, the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Labour Organization (ILO) Core Conventions, the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, and international best practices were taken into consideration.
- Equal Opportunity Approach: Yada Global encourages the observance of the core principles and practices outlined in this policy across all operations conducted with its employees, business partners, experts, suppliers, and project partners, and supports the adoption of this approach throughout its professional relationships.

2. Inclusivity Knows No Borders: Scope of the Policy and Stakeholder Matrix

This policy establishes the corporate framework for applying the principles of diversity, equity, and inclusion across Yada Global's administrative, technical, and field activities, as well as physical and digital events conducted on behalf of the organization (meetings, workshops, multiplier events, training sessions, etc.). The policy encompasses the core principles and practices intended to be observed in activities carried out with employees, executives, consultants, project teams, business partners, suppliers, and other relevant stakeholders.

To provide a clearer and more systematic assessment, the stakeholder groups covered by this policy and the primary application areas envisioned under its scope are summarized in the matrix below.

Stakeholder Group	Covered Individuals & Entities	Application Scope Under the Policy
Internal Management & Administrative Staff	Founder, general manager, senior executives, department managers, administrative and financial affairs personnel.	Monitoring policy performance, allocating budget and resources, leading corporate culture.
Employees & Project	Full-time / part-time contracted	Treating colleagues with respect, avoiding

Personnel	employees, project coordinators, technical experts, interns, volunteers.	microaggressions, reporting suspected violations.
Academic & Consultant Network	Academic advisors, trainers, independent project experts, and reviewers.	Adopting inclusive language and methodology in training and dissemination processes, contributing to meritocracy.
External Business Partners & Suppliers	Subcontractors, service providers, material/hardware suppliers, consortium partners.	Compliance with contractual obligations, adherence to legislation regarding the prevention of child labor, supporting fair working conditions, and avoiding discriminatory practices.

3. Secure Governance: Compliance with National Legislation and Global Standards

Yada Global regards the protection of sustainable development goals and human dignity not merely as a legal obligation, but as a core ethical stance. In drafting this policy, applicable legislation in operating countries as well as international best practices have been taken into consideration.

The most critical legal frameworks guiding our policy and their reflections on our corporate operations are outlined below:

Legal / Corporate Basis	Scope & Relevant Legislation	Operational Reflection at Yada Global
Constitution & Laws of the Republic of Türkiye	Constitution of the Republic of Türkiye (Principle of Equality), Labor Law No. 4857, Law No. 6701 on the Human Rights and Equality Institution of Turkey (TIHEK).	Supporting corporate practices to prevent discrimination in employment contracts, working hours, employee rights, and social benefits.
International Declarations of Rights	UN Universal Declaration of Human Rights, EU Charter of Fundamental Rights.	A management model centering on human dignity across recruitment, career progression, and all stakeholder relations.
Global Labor Standards	ILO (International Labour Organization) Core Labor Standards.	Providing all employees with a safe, harassment-free, merit-based environment that respects trade union rights.
Data Security & Privacy	Law No. 6698 on the Protection of Personal Data (KVKK).	In processing personal data and notifications under DEI, confidentiality is strictly maintained, and personal data is protected by taking appropriate technical and administrative measures in compliance with applicable legislation.

Industrial Standards	In drafting this policy, guiding principles set forth in ISO 26000 and ISO 30415 as well as international best practices were taken into consideration.	Supporting the development of HR processes and corporate practices in alignment with international guiding principles.

4. Common Language: Concepts of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

The core concepts utilized in this policy are defined below in order to foster a shared understanding and contribute to the consistent implementation of policy provisions. These definitions serve as a guiding reference for the interpretation and application of this policy.

Concept	Corporate & Legal Definition
Diversity	The totality of individual differences among employees and stakeholders, including age, gender, disability status, ethnicity, nationality, educational level, cultural background, religion, belief, marital status, or socio-economic background.
Equity	The state in which all individuals can access rights, opportunities, and resources fairly and according to their specific needs, without any form of discrimination.
Inclusion	A work culture in which all individuals with diverse characteristics can actively participate in corporate processes, express themselves freely, and feel like a natural part of the organization.
Direct Discrimination	The direct treatment of a person less favorably than other individuals in a similar situation, solely due to their personal/protected characteristics.
Indirect Discrimination	Provisions, criteria, or practices that appear neutral on the surface but create an unfair or disproportionate disadvantage for a specific group with protected characteristics.
Psychological Harassment (Mobbing)	A systematic series of repetitive actions in the workplace aimed at pressuring, excluding, belittling, intimidating, or discrediting an employee.
Accessibility	The design or adaptation of physical workspaces, digital systems, websites, training materials, and reporting documents to ensure usability by individuals with disabilities and diverse access needs.

Reasonable Accommodation	Practical and necessary modifications that enable individuals with disabilities to participate in work life without imposing an excessive or disproportionate financial or operational burden on the organization.
Protected Characteristics	Personal characteristics that fall under the prohibition of discrimination pursuant to applicable legislation, such as gender, age, disability, ethnicity, religion, marital status, pregnancy, political opinion, trade union membership, sexual orientation, and gender identity.
Retaliation	Intentionally subjecting an employee who has reported a policy violation, provided testimony, or offered assistance to adverse professional, administrative, or psychological treatment.

5. Operational Pillars: Recruitment, Career Development, and Working Environment Principles

Yada Global adopts the principles of diversity, equity, and inclusion as an integral part of its corporate governance approach and aims to reflect these principles into its operations to the fullest extent appropriate. In this regard, the implementation and continuous development of policy provisions across key operational areas—particularly human resources practices, the working environment, and corporate business processes—are supported.

5.1. Merit-Based Recruitment and Equal Opportunity

All vacant positions are announced and managed in accordance with objective evaluation criteria defined on the basis of technical qualifications, professional experience, competence, and merit required for the role. Avoiding practices that may lead to discrimination during recruitment processes and offering equal opportunities to candidates are essential. In remuneration practices, a fair and equitable approach is adopted by taking into account job descriptions, levels of responsibility, experience, competence, performance, and other objective criteria. Regarding employees performing the same or equivalent work, avoiding pay disparities based on gender or other personal characteristics is fundamental.

5.2. Inclusive Work Culture and Accessibility

Yada Global adopts a zero-tolerance approach toward discrimination, harassment, and psychological harassment (mobbing). Notifications submitted in this context are handled observing the principles of impartiality, confidentiality, and fair evaluation within the framework of applicable legislation and internal evaluation processes. To support the access of our employees with disabilities and those with special needs to physical workspaces and digital tools, reasonable accommodations are planned in line with corporate capabilities and needs, and implemented to the extent appropriate.

5.3. Gender Balance and Flexible Working Support

An inclusive approach that supports the representation of diverse knowledge, experience, and perspectives in management levels, corporate decision-making mechanisms, project coordination teams, and international project initiatives is adopted. The participation of women, young experts, and other diverse groups in decision-making and project processes within the framework of equal opportunity is encouraged. To support the work-life balance of employees with parental or caregiving responsibilities, hybrid or flexible working models may be evaluated, taking into account the nature of the work, operational requirements, and relevant legislation.

6. Cross-Border Impact: EU Projects and Supply Chain Management

Yada Global attaches great importance to observing the principles of diversity, equity, and inclusion throughout the project lifecycle in grant projects and international consortia. In line with this commitment, the organization aims to ensure that the core principles and practices outlined in this policy are taken into consideration during project design, implementation, monitoring, and evaluation processes.

Yada Global encourages the adoption of the core principles within the scope of this policy across its collaboration processes with business partners, consortium partners, and suppliers. The table below summarizes the key application areas taken into account during project and collaboration processes.

Project & Procurement Phase	YADA Global DEI Implementation	Expectations from Suppliers & Partners

Partner Selection	visionary partners who embrace ethical governance, respect for human rights, and diversity alongside technical competence.	Yada Global DEI Policy and preventing discriminatory language or discriminatory business models.
Field Implementations, Training, and Events	Designing accessible materials, environments, and equal opportunity to speak that support the participation of individuals with disabilities across all workshops, multiplier events, and field studies.	Service providers and subcontractors actively enabling accessibility in both physical venues and digital tools.

7. Roles, Responsibilities, and Assurance Mechanisms

To ensure that our DEI policy does not remain merely on paper but functions as a living, continuously monitored, and dynamic process, roles have been clearly defined and corporate assurance mechanisms established.

7.1. Division of Responsibilities

Senior Management supports the effective implementation of this policy and oversees the planning and provision of necessary resources to the extent appropriate. Departmental and project managers are expected to foster a working environment that supports the principles of diversity, equity, and inclusion within their teams and to contribute to the execution of this policy. All employees are expected to contribute to policy principles by adopting a respectful, professional, and inclusive approach toward their colleagues.

7.2. Reporting, Grievance, and Secure Whistleblowing Channels

Employees and other relevant stakeholders who are subjected to or witness situations within the scope of this policy—such as rights violations, discrimination, harassment, or psychological harassment (mobbing)—may submit applications through the notification channels specified below. Notifications are evaluated observing the principle of confidentiality and within the framework of applicable legislation.

SECURE AND CONFIDENTIAL REPORTING E-MAIL ADDRESS

(All inquiries are conducted independently in accordance with the principles of the presumption of innocence, confidentiality, and objectivity.)

- Prohibition of Retaliation: Yada Global does not tolerate any retaliatory conduct directed against individuals who make notifications in good faith, participate in grievance processes, or support inquiry and evaluation procedures. Notifications containing allegations of retaliation are examined in accordance with the principles of confidentiality, impartiality, and fair evaluation within the framework of this policy and relevant internal procedures. Where retaliatory conduct is determined, appropriate administrative and disciplinary procedures may be initiated, taking into account the nature of the incident and applicable legislation.
- Inquiry and Evaluation Process: Received notifications are subject to a preliminary assessment within a reasonable timeframe, evidence is gathered, statements from the involved parties are taken in strict confidence, and the appropriate administrative review is completed. In the event of a violation, necessary administrative and disciplinary procedures may be executed in accordance with applicable legislation and internal procedures.

8. Data-Driven Development and Policy Review

Yada Global aims to monitor and evaluate the effectiveness of this policy in line with a continuous improvement approach. In this context, appropriate performance indicators are periodically reviewed in accordance with corporate needs, the nature of operations, and the collected data. Conducted evaluations serve as a guide for monitoring and enhancing the implementation of the policy, as well as for updating it when deemed necessary.
